MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY

May was a month of positive performance for the Foresight UK Infrastructure Income Fund, with continued low volatility and a strong flow of income, in line with our strategy and expectations. Given the dividend performance of the portfolio, the Fund remains on track to deliver the targeted 5% income for its first full year. In May, the month on month performance improved a further 0.22% and contributed to the growth in total return since the Fund's inception, which now stands at 0.91%.

The portfolio continued to mature during May and included the addition of three global infrastructure investment companies to the Fund upon completion of an extensive global market mapping exercise and detailed assessment. This analysis identified a number of key geographies and strategies that complement the Fund's core UK focus. The three new international holdings, Infratil (New Zealand), Hannon Armstrong (US) and Landmark Infrastructure (US), now represent c.7% of the total portfolio. Together, they provide access to some very attractive international assets and give the Fund exposure to quality fundamental growth trends, including US mobile communications infrastructure.

With the Fund reaching its six month anniversary at the start of June, Foresight believes the portfolio constructed has proven itself capable of delivering on the investment strategy. The Fund has invested in a carefully selected group of diverse, income producing investment companies that have demonstrated low volatility during a period of unusually high turbulence within the UK infrastructure sector. The inherent diversification that results within the portfolio from matching renewables with infrastructure has been core to this low volatility and is central to the Fund's strategy going forward.
